

Source-aware localization, compilation, and security/functional validation are required before a repair claim.